Our English day celebration was full of different activities, starting with the assembly where the flag was raised. Then, we had our much-anticipated Spelling Bee contest where the students did a great job and the competition was tight, winning in the first category the representative from 6.2 class, in the second category the representative from 9.1 class and in the third category, the representative from 10.1 class.

In addition, students who stand out for the English level and performance in class, where decorated with an outstanding certification given by Peace Corps organization. Then we continue with our dynamic and full of surprises, rally lead by the American Volunteers from Peace Corps, students definitely had a wonderful time.

The celebration ended with a posters competition, where the best groups got recognition for their excellent team work.

Thank you to the El Rosario English teachers for inviting the American Volunteers serving in Colombia to such a fun day of sharing activities, culture and language with the students for English Day. We had such a great time getting to know each grade and leading fun activities. The volunteers from other towns were very impressed with the student's level of English at El Rosario, something the institution, teachers, and students should be very proud of. We are grateful to have shared the day with this school and look forward to collaborating on many more English days to come. May El Rosario teachers and students continue to learn and develop their English skills to connect to a larger population of the world and open up more doors in life.
